

B school life is all about the experiences – or at least so we are told. While studying it may take up a lot of your time, making space for some voluntary work can really add value to your overall B School experience.

“Employers don’t just look at your degree level; they want to know what you’ve been doing whilst you’ve been doing your degree. A lot of people want to see the volunteering part because it shows that you’re prepared to go the extra mile.” – Fee Wood

Here are some of the top reasons to get involved in student volunteering at KCT Business School.

1. Make a difference

First and foremost, student volunteering is of course a great way to make a real contribution and make difference from your peer mate- be it Social cause, research and academic contribution, Leadership role and the list goes on. You’ll experience a whole range of experiences, which will make fantastic stories to share in the future!

2. Have amazing new experiences

The chance to participate in new experiences is a big part of the appeal of student volunteering, and the more involved you get, the greater a sense of satisfaction you’ll receive. Volunteering can be as fun as you want to make it, and really caters to everyone. You can always find something – and if it doesn’t already exist, start it up yourself!

3. Meet new people

It's not just about the participation; volunteering also means getting to meet people with a similar passion. This is also a chance to learn a lot, because of the diversity of the people you'll be working alongside – all bringing different perspectives, experiences and skills.

You may also find to get a new perspective on both local and global, and a new desire to grow. Having encountered a new culture may place you in a better position to do so, adding to your experience and knowledge.

4. Boost your employment prospects

When you go for a job interview, having student volunteering work on your CV is always a bonus. No matter how what industry you're applying to, employers always like to see part of your wider personality, and what you really care about.

Students can volunteer various events and programs conducted by KCT Business School which will not only provide opportunity to interact with diverse groups but also to enhance and exhibit managerial skill while pursuing the business course. The following are the top 5 skills which can be acquired by the students through volunteering:

- Leadership
- Problem Solving & adaptability
- Time Management
- Effective communication
- Working as a part of team.
- Develop work-ready skills, that you can't learn in the lecture environment

The KCT Business school students have wide opportunity to volunteer in the following events:

- Admission
- Industry connect
- Organizing & coordinating events
- Forum & Clubs
- Public Relation
- Student Affairs

You will have to register your interest to volunteer the above activities.